CASE NO. C08-1727-RSM

ORDER ON PLAINTIFFS' MOTION
FOR PARTIAL SUMMARY
JUDGMENT AND DEFENDANT'S
MOTION FOR SUMMARY
JUDGMENT

15 This matter is before the Court for consideration of Plaintiffs' motion for partial summary
16 judgment (Dkt. # 56), and Defendant's motion for summary judgment (Dkt. # 62). Jurisdiction 17 is proper pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §1331. Plaintiffs request summary judgment on the issue of 18 Defendant's liability and attorneys' fees. Defendant has opposed the motion, and requests 19 summary judgment on the issue of Plaintiffs' substantive due process claim. Oral argument was 20 heard on October 27, 2011. The Court shall, for the reasons set forth, deny Plaintiffs' motion 21 and grant Defendant's motion.

22 I. FACTUAL BACKGROUND

23 Plaintiff Westmark Development Corporation ("Westmark") originally filed an action in 24 state court in 1996 against the City of Burien ("Burien") and King County. The complaint

1 asserted causes of action under state tort law and federal civil rights law, 42 U.S.C. §1983, based 2 on plaintiff's allegations of delay and denial of due process in the permitting process for a multi-3 family development project. See Dkt. # 2. Westmark alleged that Burien's purpose in attempting 4 to block the development project was political rather than for legitimate regulatory purposes. Id.

5 In 1989, Westmark purchased multifamily-zoned real estate in King County. In 1990, 6 Westmark submitted a permit application to King County for the construction of a multifamily 7 complex. As part of the permitting process Westmark was required to assess the environmental 8 impact of the project and submit a permit application under the State Environmental Policy Act 9 (SEPA). In 1991, after reviewing Westmark's SEPA application, King County issued a 10 threshold determination of significance. Subsequently, Westmark revised its application.

11 In 1992, citizens in the area surrounding Westmark's property voted to incorporate as the 12 City of Burien. Burien was officially incorporated in 1993. Thereafter, in an Interlocal 13 Agreement, King County transferred several pending permit applications within the incorporated 14 area—including Westmark's—to Burien. Meanwhile, Burien implemented a moratorium on 15 applications and approvals for multi-family housing development.

16 Over the next several years, files were transferred between King County and Burien and 17 between the parties. The parties and King County also engaged in numerous discussions about 18 the permitting process. Burien claims that it was awaiting an Environmental Impact Statement 19 (EIS) from Westmark. See Dkt. # 62. Conversely, Westmark claims that it was awaiting a new 20 threshold determination from Burien.

21 In 1996, after Westmark initiated the first lawsuit in state court, Burien issued a 22 determination of significance on Westmark's revised application. The parties reached a 23 settlement of the 1996 lawsuit in 1998, but the settlement later fell apart. Westmark initiated a 24

1 second lawsuit seeking to enforce the settlement. Ultimately, Burien disclosed that the 1998 2 settlement had been approved by the City Council in executive session, in violation of the 3 Washington Open Public Meetings Act, WASH. REV. CODE § 42.30. The settlement was declared 4 void by the trial court.

5 The state court allowed Westmark to re-open the 1996 case, and to amend the complaint
6 and add additional defendants and causes of action. The Second Amended Complaint, filed 7 September 29, 2004, added several named individuals as additional defendants on the §1983 8 civil rights claim only, asserting that these individuals denied plaintiff's equal protection and due 9 process rights. On the basis of the §1983 claim, one of the newly-added defendants removed the 10 case to this Court. Westmark Development Corporation, et al., v. the City of Burien, et al., C04-11 2243RSM. This Court declined jurisdiction over the state law claims and remanded them to the 12 state court. The parties then stipulated to dismissal of the §1983 claim without prejudice. The 13 jury in the trial of the state law claims against the City of Burien returned a general verdict in 14 favor of Westmark in the amount of $10,710,000. The Washington State Court of Appeals 15 affirmed, noting that the claims on which plaintiff prevailed at trial were for negligence, tortious 16 interference with a business expectation, and negligent misrepresentation. Westmark 17 Development Corp. v. City of Burien, 140 Wash. App. 540 (Wash. Ct. App. 2007).

18 Westmark returned to this Court and re-filed the §1983 claim (and associated claim for 19 attorneys' fees under 42 U.S.C. §1988) against the City of Burien only, not including the 20 individuals who were named defendants on the §1983 claim in the Second Amended Complaint.
21 This Court originally dismissed the complaint as barred by the applicable three-year statute of 22 limitations, and unredeemed by a tolling agreement. The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals 23 reversed and remanded the matter back to this Court. Subsequently, Plaintiff moved for summary 24

1 judgment as to defendant's liability for attorneys' fees pursuant to §1988, which this Court 2 denied.

3 Westmark now makes a second motion for summary judgment as to defendant's liability 4 for attorney's fees under §1988. Dkt. # 56. Burien also moves for summary judgment as to 5 Plaintiffs' §1983 claim. Dkt. #62. Westmark argued, in part, that the §1983 claim was mooted
6 by the state court verdict, because there were "no other damages." Dkt. # 56, p. 7. In an Order 7 directing supplemental briefing, this Court found that the mootness argument was unavailing.
8 Dkt. # 66, p. 2.

9 II. ANALYSIS

10 A. Summary Judgment

11 Summary judgment is proper only if the pleadings, discovery, affidavits and disclosure 12 materials on file show that "there is no genuine dispute as to any material fact and the movant is 13 entitled to a judgment as a matter of law." FED. R. CIV. P. 56(a)&(c) (as amended December 1, 14 2010). An issue is "genuine" if "a reasonable jury could return a verdict for the nonmoving 15 party" and a fact is material if it "might affect the outcome of the suit under the governing law."
16 Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 248 (1986).

17 The moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law when the nonmoving party 18 fails to make a sufficient showing on an essential element of a claim in the case on which the 19 nonmoving party has the burden of proof. Celotex Corp. v. Cartett, 477 U.S. 317, 323 (1986).
20 The Court resolves any factual disputes in favor of the nonmoving party only when the facts 21 specifically attested by each party are in contradiction. T.W. Elec. Serv., Inc. v. Pac. Elec.
22 Contractors Ass'n, 809 F.2d 626, 631 (9th Cir. 1987). A party asserting that a fact cannot be, or 23 is, disputed must support the assertion by citing to particular parts of material in the record, 24

1 including deposition, documents, electronically stored information, affidavits or declarations.
2 FED. R. CIV. P. 56(c)(1)(A). The Court need only consider the cited materials, but may in its 3 discretion consider other materials in the record. FED. R. CIV. P. 56(c)(3). The Court may also 4 render judgment independent of the motion, and grant the motion on grounds not raised by a 5 party, after giving notice and reasonable time to respond. FED. R. CIV. P. 56(f)(2).

6 B. Plaintiff's Motion for Summary Judgment

7 1. §1988 Attorneys' Fees

8 A Plaintiff may recover attorneys' fees under 42 U.S.C. §1988 if it is a "prevailing party" 9 in "any action or proceeding to enforce a provision of [42 U.S.C. §1983]." 42 U.S.C. §1988(b).
10 Section 1983 protects against the "deprivation of any rights, privileges, or immunities secured by 11 the Constitution and laws." 42 U.S.C. §1983. Additionally, to hold a municipality liable in a 12 §1983 claim, a plaintiff must prove that the deprivation of a constitutional or federal right 13 occurred pursuant to a municipal custom or policy, or a decision of a final policymaker. Monell
14 v. N.Y.C. Dept. of Soc. Servs., 436 U.S. 658, 694 (1978).

15 2. Avoiding Constitutional Adjudication

16 Westmark argues that trial on the §1983 issue is improper, because the court should avoid 17 constitutional questions where state law claims are dispositive. In a similar argument, Westmark 18 claims that adjudicating the §1983 question is improper because it was mooted by the state court 19 verdict. However, in its Order directing supplemental briefing this Court determined that 20 Plaintiffs' §1983 claim was not moot because the state law verdict was not dispositive on the 21 constitutional question. Dkt. # 66. Similarly, this Court now finds that it cannot avoid the 22 constitutional question under §1983. Westmark's §1988 claim for attorneys' fees rests 23 exclusively on the constitutional question, and the state law verdict was not dispositive on this 24 issue. Thus, it is proper for this Court to consider Westmark's constitutional claim.

1 3. Trial on Substantive Due Process Issue

2 Westmark also argues that a full trial on the §1983 claim is unnecessary because 3 Westmark already prevailed on related state law claims. Although the Supreme Court has 4 recognized the possibility of recovering §1988 attorneys' fees without fully adjudicating the 5 §1983 claim, the cases are limited to instances where the §1983 claim was resolved (by, e.g.
6 settlement or mootness). In other words, the analysis begins with a plaintiff who is precluded
7 from adjudicating the §1983 claim. Section 1988 is intended to encourage plaintiffs to vindicate 8 their federal rights, and the authority to grant attorneys' fees should not be "extinguished by the 9 fact that the case was settled or resolved on a nonconstitutional ground." Smith v. Robinson, 468 10 U.S. 992, 1006 (1984), superseded by statute on another issue, (citing Maher v. Gagne, 448 U.S.
11 122, 132 (1980)).

12 For example, Maher allows attorneys' fees if a "plaintiff prevails on a wholly statutory, 13 non-civil-rights claim pendent to a substantial constitutional claim." Maher, 448 U.S. at 132. In 14 Maher, the §1983 claims were settled by a consent decree, which made no determination on the 15 constitutional question. Id. at 124. Because the settlement gave plaintiff "substantially all of the 16 relief originally sought in her complaint," and because she pled a substantial (though not 17 litigated) constitutional claim, the Court determined she was "prevailing" under §1988 and 18 granted her attorneys' fees. Id. at 127. Importantly, the settlement resolved the plaintiff's §1983 19 claims and she was precluded from pressing the claims further; however, the Court's power to 20 address §1988 fees was not "extinguished" by the settlement. Smith, 468 U.S. at 1006.

21 Similarly, the Ninth Circuit has allowed attorneys' fees in cases where plaintiffs' §1983
22 claims become moot before the constitutional question is fully adjudicated. Williams v. Alioto, 23 625 F.2d 845 (9th Cir. 1980). In Williams, the plaintiffs challenged certain police practices in 24 the City of San Francisco through a §1983 claim. Id. at 847. Based on a consideration of the

1 constitutional deprivation, the court initially granted plaintiff's request for a preliminary 2 injunction. Id. Subsequently, the challenged police practices were terminated and the §1983
3 claim for injunctive and declaratory relief became moot. Id. Because the plaintiff was precluded 4 from fully adjudicating the constitutional claim, the court reasoned that the preliminary 5 injunction (based on an initial finding of unconstitutionality) and the favorable end result were 6 sufficient to make the plaintiff "prevailing" under §1988.

7 Even the quite liberal analysis of Maier that Westmark cites from the Sixth and Tenth 8 Circuit Courts of Appeals begins with a plaintiff that is precluded from pursuing the fee-
9 generating claim. See Seaway Drive-In, Inc. v. Twp. of Clay, 791 F.2d 447 (6th Cir. 1986) 10 (granting §1988 attorneys' fees when plaintiff is precluded from arguing the constitutional claim 11 after it prevails on a state law claim); Plott v. Griffiths, 938 F.2d 164 (10th Cir. 1991) (same).
12 By contrast, Westmark is not precluded from arguing its constitutional claim under §1983.

13 Furthermore, if this court grants attorneys' fees without considering the constitutional 14 claim, Burien would have no opportunity to defend itself. Because the state law claims—which 15 required a lower (negligence) showing by the plaintiff—were not dispositive, Burien should 16 have this opportunity. Therefore, it is appropriate for this Court to consider the merits for 17 Westmark's §1983 claim before awarding attorneys' fees under §1988.

18 Accordingly, the Court denies Westmark's motion for summary judgment.

19 C. Defendant's Motion of Summary Judgment on §1983

20 1. Substantive Due Process Violation

21 At oral argument, Westmark asserted that its §1983 claim was brought under the theory 22 of a substantive due process violation. For a substantive due process claim, the plaintiff must 23 show that it was deprived of a constitutionally protected property interest. Wedges/Ledges of Cal.
24 v. City of Phx., 24 F.3d 56, 62 (9th Cir. 1994) ("A threshold requirement to a substantive or

1 procedural due process claim is the plaintiff's showing of a liberty or property interest protected
2 by the Constitution"). In a §1983 claim against a municipality, the municipality can be held 3 liable if a municipal official deprived the plaintiff of the protected property interest pursuant to 4 an official custom or policy. Monell, 436 U.S. at 690. Additionally, in the context of land-use 5 disputes under substantive due process, the plaintiff must show that the municipal action "serves 6 no legitimate governmental purpose." N. Pacifica LLC v. City of Pacifica, 526 F.3d 478, 485
7 (9th Cir. 2008) (citing Lingle v. Chevron U.S.A., Inc., 544 U.S. 528, 542 (2005)).

8 Westmark's substantive due process claim is based on the allegation that Burien deprived 9 Westmark of its constitutionally protected property interest when Burien delayed the issuance of 10 a threshold determination under SEPA. See, e.g. Dkt. # 64, p. 13. Assuming, for the purposes of 11 this analysis, that Westmark has a constitutionally protected property interest in the issuance of a 12 threshold determination without delay, Westmark must next show that the deprivation occurred 13 pursuant to a municipal custom or policy and that Burien's action lacked a rational relationship 14 to a legitimate government interest. See, e.g. Mateyko v. Felix, 924 F.2d 824, 826 (9th Cir.
15 1991); N. Pacifica LLC, 526 F.3d at 485.

16 2. Municipal Custom or Policy

17 Burien moves for summary judgment claiming that Westmark has not alleged sufficient 18 facts to show a substantive due process violation. As noted supra § III(a), in a §1983 claim 19 against a municipal defendant, the plaintiff must prove: (1) that a municipal official deprived the 20 plaintiff of a constitutionally protected right; and (2) that the official acted pursuant to an 21 expressly adopted municipal custom or policy, or a decision of a final policymaker. See Monell, 22 436 U.S. at 690. To satisfy the second requirement, Westmark alleges two municipal policies:
23 Burien's moratorium against multifamily housing permit approvals, and the amended agreement 24 between Burien and King County to transfer Westmark's project to Burien. For the city to be

1 liable, Westmark must prove that the alleged constitutional deprivation was caused by one or 2 both of these policies. See, e.g. Mateyko, 924 F.2d at 826 (stating that the municipality is liable 3 when the “policy or custom caused the constitutional deprivation complained of.”). For the 4 purposes of this analysis the Court will assume, without deciding, that both the moratorium and 5 the amended agreement constitute official policies under Monell. 436 U.S. at 690.

6 With regards to the amended agreement, Westmark cannot show that Burien officials 7 were acting pursuant to this agreement when they caused the injury complained of. The 8 Agreement between King County and Burien covered the transfer of local governmental 9 authority from the county to the newly formed municipality—as contemplated by the 10 Washington State Constitution. WASH. CONST. art. XI, § 10. In the amendment, the county
11 officially transferred several projects to Burien for completion (including Westmark’s).
12 Westmark’s due process claim is not based on an improper transfer of the project, but rather on 13 Burien’s actions with regard to Westmark’s SEPA application. It cannot be said that Burien 14 officials conducted the SEPA review pursuant to the amendment. Accordingly, under Monell, 15 Westmark’s claim of an official policy must rest on the moratorium.

16 3. Legitimate Government Interest

17 A plaintiff’s burden to prove that a municipal official violated its substantive due process 18 rights is very high. Matsuda v. City and Cnty. of Honolulu, 512 F.3d 1148, 1156 (9th Cir. 2008).
19 “In order for [a plaintiff] to establish a violation of [its] substantive due process right, [the 20 plaintiff] is required to prove that the enactment of [the policy] was ‘clearly arbitrary and 21 unreasonable, having no substantial relation to the public health, safety, morals or general 22 welfare.’” Kim v. City of Federal Way, 2009 WL 1249298, 2 (W.D.Wash. 2009) (quoting 23 Kawaoka v. City of Arroyo Grande, 17 F.3d 1227, 1234 (9th Cir.1994)). When complaining of a 24 delay, the plaintiff “must show that the City’s delays in processing its application lacked a

1 rational relationship to a government interest.” N. Pacifica LLC, 526 F.3d at 485 (dismissing 2 plaintiff’s delay-based substantive due process claim because plaintiff insufficiently alleged facts
3 showing “arbitrary or irrational conduct by the City.”). Further, “courts, in analyzing a 4 substantive due process claim in the context of land use permitting, apply the ‘shocks-the-5 conscience’ standard.” Woods View II, LLC v. Kitsap County, 2011 WL 2491594, 7 (W.D. Wash.
6 2011) (citing Mongeau v. City of Marlborough, 492 F.3d 14 (1st Cir. 2007); Torromeo v. Town 7 of Fremont, NH, 438 F.3d 113 (1st Cir. 2006)). “Federal judicial interference with local 8 government zoning decision is proper only where the government body could have no legitimate 9 reason for its decision.” Dodd v. Hood River County, 59 F.3d 852, 864 (9th Cir. 1995). In its 10 analysis, the Court does “not require that the City’s legislative acts actually advance its stated 11 purposes, but instead look[s] to whether ‘the governmental body could have had no legitimate 12 reason for its decision.’” Kawaoka, 17 F.3d at 1234 (quoting Levald, Inc. v. City of Palm Desert, 13 998 F.2d 680, 690 (9th Cir.1993)).

14 Burien argues that summary judgment in its favor is proper because, even if it acted 15 pursuant to the moratorium, Burien had a legitimate government interest in enacting and 16 applying the moratorium. This argument rests on the assumption that the moratorium was 17 lawfully enacted and was nothing “other than the exercise of local planning authority.” Dkt. # 62, 18 p. 18. Under Washington law, newly formed cities are permitted to impose moratoria “during 19 the interim transition period on the filing of applications with the county for development 20 permits or approvals.” WASH. REV. CODE § 35.02.137.¹ Also, “[d]uring this interim period, the 21 city . . . may adopt rules establishing policies and procedures under the state environmental 22 policy act.” WASH. REV. CODE § 35.02.130. Thus, it is reasonable that the city would put-off any

23 ¹ The “interim period” is the time between the election and qualification of municipal officials and the official date 24 of incorporation. See, e.g. WASH. REV. CODE § 35.02.130.

1 decisions under SEPA during this time period. The newly formed municipality is allowed to 2 impose moratoria and engage in various other legislative tasks during the interim period in order
3 to “facilitate the transition” of government. Id. Therefore, Washington law specifically 4 contemplates a legitimate reason for enacting such a moratorium for a limited period of time.
5 Also, when Burien extended the Moratorium for a six-month period it also followed the 6 procedures contemplated by Washington law (e.g. Burien held a public meeting, entered findings 7 of fact, and formally adopted the six-month extension. Dkt. # 57-3, p. 13–16).² See WASH. REV.
8 CODE § 36.70A.390. Furthermore, Westmark agrees that the moratorium was lawfully enacted, 9 and does not cite any evidence that it was extended beyond September 1993. Even if, as 10 Westmark has argued, Burien’s moratorium was encouraged by one of Burien’s politically active 11 residents, Westmark cannot meet its burden because the question is whether Burien had any 12 legitimate government purpose. See Dodd, 59 F.3d at 864. Thus, Westmark’s argument must 13 fail: if Burien was acting pursuant to the moratorium, then Westmark cannot show that Burien
14 had no legitimate government purpose.³ Because Westmark’s claim of municipal liability rested 15 on the moratorium as the official policy, Westmark’s substantive due process claim fails.

16 Accordingly, Defendant’s motion for summary judgment is granted.

17 III. CONCLUSION

18 For the foregoing reasons Westmark’s motion for summary judgment on §1988 19 attorneys’ fees is DENIED. A plaintiff is entitled to § 1988 attorneys fees if it prevails on a 20 §1983 claim. Although, under Maier, a plaintiff may ‘prevail’ without fully adjudicating its 21 §1983 claim, this analysis is inapplicable to Westmark’s case. Maier, 448 U.S. 122. The Maier

22
23 ² Notably, the documentation regarding the moratorium indicates that it was extended for only one six-month period until September 1993. Dkt. # 57-3, p. 16 & 28.

24 ³ If, on the other hand, Burien was not acting pursuant to the moratorium, then Westmark has not established municipal liability under Monell. 436 U.S. at 690.

1 analysis is inapplicable because Westmark's state court verdict was not dispositive on the §1983 2 constitutional question and Westmark was not precluded (through settlement or mootness) from 3 pursuing the §1983 claim. Thus, Westmark has not shown that it is prevailing for the purposes 4 of §1988.

5 Burien's motion for summary judgment on Westmark's §1983 substantive due process 6 claim is GRANTED. In order to establish municipal liability in a §1983 claim, the plaintiff must 7 show that it suffered a constitutional violation that was caused by a municipal custom or policy.
8 See Monell, 436 U.S. at 690; Mateyko, 924 F.2d at 826. Westmark's claim of municipal liability
9 rests on Burien's moratorium. Because Westmark is unable to show that the lawfully enacted 10 moratorium served no legitimate government purpose, Westmark is unable to establish municipal 11 liability against Burien and cannot prevail in its §1983 claim.
